It was not made of horn and ivory. It was uncarved oak, black and which rotated slowly, like a record. It was not supported by anything, did not even have an axis. "We are four against him," said the Patterner. return, I felt that I no longer desired, was looking for, was in need of a single thing; it was enough. "There's people all over these parts, and maybe beyond, who think, as you said, that nobody can be wise alone. So these people try to hold to each other. And so that's why we're called the Hand, or the women of the Hand, though we're not women only. But it serves to call ourselves women, for the great folk don't look for women to work together. Or to have thoughts about such things as rule or misrule. Or to have any powers." "She is of mine," said Azver. She could see his mind dance ahead of hers, taking up and playing with ideas, transforming them as on the low beaches of the river mouth, the fine, cold, dismal drizzle of that grey winter. His Hound nodded, as if its location was all that had interested him in Roke. High Marsh. the dust down. But it sounded silly all the same. She was a little drunk, I thought. his hand in his mind only, as when he played the mental harp, then indeed he touched her. He felt. walked down it. The four men followed her. "Then to me you are Silence," the wizard said. "You can sleep in the nook under the west window. There's an old pallet in the woodhouse. Air it. Don't bring mice in with it." And he stalked off towards the Overfell, angry with the boy for coming and with himself for giving in; but it was not anger that made his heart pound. Striding along he could stride, then with the seawind pushing at him always from the left and the early sunlight on the sea out past the vast shadow of the mountain, he thought of the Mages of Roke, the masters of the art magic, the professors of mystery and power. "He was too much for 'em, was he? And he'll be too much for me," he thought, and smiled. He was a peaceful man, but he did not mind a bit of danger. "He does," she said. "He heals the cattle." fate had shaken him. There was something mysterious in it, some element or some person missing. be distasteful to us, but which may be seen as quite legitimate and even desirable by its own. The Summoner, who had been standing with his back to them, facing the fireless hearth, turned round. "The names witches give each other are not our concern here," he said. "If you have some interest in this woman, Doorkeeper, it should be pursued outside these walls - outside the door you vowed to keep. She has no place here nor ever will. She can bring only confusion, dissension, and further weakness among us. I will speak no longer and say nothing else in her presence. The only answer to conscious error is silence." "At least he's not seeing the witch's girl," said Golden. "That's done with." Later on it occurred to him that neither was his wife seeing the witch anymore. For years they'd been thick as thieves, against all his warnings, and now Tangle was never anywhere near the house. Women's friendships never lasted. He teased her about it. Finding her strewing pennyroyal and miller's-bane in the chests and clothes-presses against an infestation of moths, he said, "Seems like you'd have your friend the wise woman up to hex 'em away. Or aren't you friends anymore?". Starving hungry, frustrated, misunderstood, Diamond reached out to hold her again, to make her. "No. I don't. Rose wouldn't teach me. She said she didn't dare. Because I had power but she didn't. Otter looked from one to the other. Clearly they had told him their own greatest secret and their hope. the winter long, out on the high marsh. where did it turn false; how the balance of things was kept or lost; what crafts were needful, "Did you know that, Irian?" the Doorkeeper asked her. fierce as ever, but her voice was seldom as harsh as this when she spoke to him. The air moved against his face. Far ahead, dim, small, there was a light that was not werelight. He went forward. He had been crawling for a long time now, dragging the right leg, which would not bear his weight. He went forward. He smelled the wind of evening and saw the sky of evening through the branches and leaves of trees. An arched oak root formed the mouth of the cave, no bigger than a man or a badger needed to crawl through. He crawled through. He lay there under the root of the tree, seeing the light fade and a star or two come out among the leaves. Curious manners, I thought. But, then, if that's what's done. . . all the miles to Woodedge. All he said was "She saved me," and the carter asked no questions. She had no wish to explore for herself.
