During the worst of these harangues, Leilani often wished that her mother would dispense with. Reliably off-center, Aunt Gen waved gaily, as though the trailer were an ocean liner about to steam out west to action in the east. Its nickel-iron core was somewhat smaller than Earth's, which gave it a comparable gravitational force at the surface. It turned in a thirty-one-hour day about an axis more tilted with respect to its orbital plane than Earth's, which in conjunction with its more elliptical orbit--a consequence of perturbations introduced by the nearness of Beta Centauri--produced greater climatic extremes across its latitudes, and highly variable seasons. Accompanied by two small, pockmarked moons, Romulus and Remus, Chiron completed one orbit of Alpha Centauri every 419.66 days. Utah night, four feet above the highway, wide and shining with fear. His destiny is hers, and her fate is the woman in the frilly slip, and moonlight painting points on the teeth in her snarl. her contact with anybody made no sense. Veronica said that Celia hadn't volunteered any more information and that she hadn't pressed Celia for any, which Colman believed because that was the kind of relationship he knew they had--much like that between himself and Sirocco. But now that the immediate panic was over and everybody had had a breather, he was curious. pain by sharing it. And Luki more. boy feels deep sympathy for this truck-driving Gump, and he regrets being so insensitive as to have. "The best. I can make 'em stand up and talk." She advanced one more step, not out of a sense of obligation or curiosity, but because by turning away. "Believe in life after death?" Celia had become very thoughtful in the last few seconds. She waited for the talking to subside for a moment, and then said, "If we have to go up to the ship anyway, it might be possible to make this far more effective than what we've been talking about so far." She paused, but nobody interrupted. "I know where the people who have been arrested." "What does that mean?" Driscoll asked, looking at the Chironian who had spoken. born? ". Or maybe not. he will return to this house and repay his debt." "Well-meaning but useless," Leilani interrupted. She seemed to be speaking from experience. Outside the confinement quarters in corridor 8E, two SD guards were standing rocklike and immobile when Driscoll appeared around the corner at the far end, wearing a steward's full uniform and pushing a trolley loaded high with dishes for the evening meal. Halfway along the corridor the trolley swerved slightly because of a recently loosened castor, but Driscoll corrected it and carried on to stop in front of the guards. One of them inspected his badge and nodded to the other, who turned to unlock the door. As Driscoll began to move the trolley, it swerved again and bumped into the nearest guard, causing the soup in a carelessly covered tureen to slop over the rim and spatter a few drops on the guard's uniform. Talking to Jay had brought to the surface a lot of things that Colman usually preferred not to think about. Life was like the Army: It took people and broke them into little pieces, and then put the pieces back together again the way it wanted. Except it did it with their minds. It took kids' minds while they were plastic and paralyzed them by telling them they were stupid, confused them with people who were supposed to know everything better than they did but wouldn't tell them anything, and terrified them with a God who loved everybody. Then it drilled them and trained them until the only things that made sense were those it told them to think. The system had turned Anita into a doll, and it was trying to turn Jay into a puppet just as it had turned Bernard into a puppet. It turned people into recording machines that words went into and came out of again. and made them think they knew everything about a planet full of people they'd never seen, just as it blew black guys' brains out because they wanted to run their farms and didn't want their kids nailed to walls, and then told the civilians in Cape Town it was okay. And what had it done to Colman? He didn't know because he didn't know how else it might have been. "To Congress, the people." "Old Sinsemilla," said Leilani. Curtis Hammond and his parents were killed less than twenty-four hours ago. If by now the Colorado. person again. Never. The real Leilani was back? rested, refreshed, ready to take care of business. "When I wasn't scared anymore. When I was big enough and angry enough to make it stop." Micky's. When it rains, it pours, his mother had said. She never claimed that the thought was original with her. commotion. The Korean craftsman who had fashioned the piece had probably led a simple and uncomplaining life, Kalens thought to himself, and would have died satisfied in the knowledge that he had created beauty from nothing and left the world a richer place for having passed through. Would his descendants in the Asia of eight hundred years later be able to say the same or to feel the same fulfillment as they scrambled for their share of mass-produced consumer affluence, paraded their newfound wealth and arrogance through the fashion houses and auction rooms of London, Paris, and New York, or basked on the decks of their gaudy yachts off Australian beaches? Kalens very much doubted it. So what had their so-called emancipation done for the world except prostitute its treasures, debase its cultural currency, and submerge the products of its finest minds in a flood of banal egalitarianism and tasteless uniformity? The same kind of destructive parasitism by its own masses, multiplying in its tissues and spreading like a disease, had brought the West to its knees over half a century earlier. Lechat cut him off with a wave of his hand. "Don't make any noise," he said to the whole group, who were crowding around in astonishment. "Everything is okay." He signaled Borfein over with another wave of his hand. Over by the door the soldiers had dragged in two unconscious guards, and two of them were already putting on the SD uniforms while the steward handed them two automatics, which he produced from inside the napkin he was carrying. "There isn't a lot of time," Lechat advised Wellesley and Borftein. "We have to get you downstairs and into the Communications Center. Now listen, and I'll give you a quick rundown on the situation. . .grass extended from one side of the lot to the other, but it provided a scant twelve feet of turf between." "And thanks for the valves," Jay said. "They fit perfectly." "How's it coming along?" Marcia Quarrey then raised the question of a separate governor, responsible to Wellesley, but physically based on the surface inside the enclave to administer its affairs. Perhaps the division of authority between the members of the Directorate sitting twenty thousand miles away in the ship had contributed to the difficulties experienced since planetfall, she suggested, and delegating it to one person who had the advantages of being on the spot would remedy a lot of defects. Opinions were in favor, and Quarrey nominated Deputy Director Sterm for the new office. Sterm, however, declined on the grounds that a large part of the job would involve policymaking connected with Terran-Chironian relationships, and since a Liaison Director existed to whom that responsibility was already entrusted, the sensible way to avoid possible conflicts was to unify the two functions, and therefore nominated Howard Kalens; Quarrey seconded, and the vote was carried by a wide margin. "How do you know there's no one around?" family, and suddenly he sways as though physically battered by the flood of grief that storms through his. "It was a depressed fracture," said Geneva. "Bone chips in the brain. A blood clot." Or maybe the dog's sudden anxiety has nothing to do with the contents of the mirrored wardrobe. She slap-slap-slap of his sneakers echoes between the bank and the trees, slap-slap-slap, a spoor of sound. ordinary boy under the name Curtis Hammond or any other. kept her from regaining her usual ease of movement, but also anger; she remained unbalanced by a sense. With no hesitation, determined to make his mother proud, to be daring and courageous, the boy sprints. As a matter of emotional survival, she had recently been making an effort to keep her anger sheathed. In the driver's seat, the startled woman comes unstartled enough to speak, but the boy can't make out. "So where do you go?" Jay asked again. Strangely, it was this very grasp that he was beginning to acquire of the Chironians' dedication to life that troubled Pernak. It troubled him because the more he discovered of their history and their ways, the more he came to understand how tenaciously and ferociously they would defend their freedom to express that dedication. They defended it individually, and he was unable to imagine that they would not defend it with just as much determination collectively. They had known for well over twenty years that the Mayflower II was coming, and beneath their casual geniality they were anything but a passive, submissive race who would trust their future to chance and the better nature of others. They were realists, and Pernak was convinced that they would have prepared themselves to meet the worst that the situation might entail. Although nobody had ever mentioned weapons to him, from what he was beginning to see of Chironian sciences, their means of meeting the worst could well be very potent indeed. "A nice sentiment, I agree," Kalens said. "But they still should be taught some manners." creatures, but in some ways, they're pathetically predictable. "You're nine, huh?". The young, sophisticated wife that Howard Kalens had taken with him to Luna to join the Mayflower H was now in her early forties, but her face had acquired character and maturity along with the womanly look that had evolved from girlish prettiness, and her body had filled out to a voluptuousness that had lost none of its femininity. She was not exactly beautiful in the transient, fashion-model sense of the word; but the firm, determined lines of her chin and well-formed mouth, together with the calm, calculating eyes that studied the world from a distance, signaled a more basic sensuality which time would never erase. Hitching clumsily but warily alongside the bed, telling herself, Calm. Telling herself, Get a grip. Lesley looked at the two of them, but they said nothing. There was nothing more they could tell him. He could close the lock and commit himself to the protecting the Battle. He wheels around, facing the way that he came, ready to brain the first of them with the juice container. "Sirocco, D Company commander, Second Infantry Brigade. Is your commanding officer there?". "With a friend in Baltimore," she told him, thus making her capitulation total. She needn't have, she knew, but something compelling inside her wanted that. She knew also that it was Sterm's way of forcing her to admit it to herself. The terms were now understood. He thought it as he and Sirocco sat entombed in their heavy-duty protective suits behind a window in the guardroom next to the facility's armored door, staring out along the corridors that nobody had come along in twenty years unless they'd had to. Behind them PFC Driscoll was wedged into a chair, watching a movie on one of the computer screens with the audio switched through- to his suit radio. Driscoll should have been patrolling outside, but that ritual was dispensed with whenever Sirocco was in charge of the Bomb Factory guard detail. A year or so previously, somebody in D Company had taken advantage of the fact that everyone looked the same in heavy-duty suits by feeding a video recording of some dutiful, long forgotten sentry into the closed-circuit TV system that senior officers were in the habit of spying through from time to time, and nobody from the unit had done any patrolling since. The cameras were used instead to afford early warning of. unannounced spot checks. "My mother's a little nuts about all things Hawaiian." "I'm sure glad to hear that. Frankly, I've been worried about you. In the movies, private eyes are always. When he glanced back, he noticed a Lincoln Navigator pulling away from the curb across the street, no. While the red and then the purple dust of twilight settled, Noah remained in the three-bedroom suite. Colman was nonplussed. He shook his head as if to clear it.
