He was so distraught that when he made up his mind to call Silence he could not think of the opening of the spell, which he had known for sixty years; then when he thought he had it, he began to speak a Summoning instead, and the spell had begun to work before he realised what he was doing and stopped and undid it word by word. Where his boat is rowing, freedom was. Without her, he could attain it only when he was hearing and singing and playing. The cowboys were discussing whether or not it was safe to eat the meat of a steer dead of the murrain. The supply of food they had brought, meager to start with, was about to run out. Instead of riding twenty or thirty miles to restock, they wanted to cut the tongue out of a steer that had died nearby that morning. "I won't sail my boat across Havnor, dear love. I plan to go around it. By water." He could always make her laugh; he was the only one who could. When he was away, she was quiet-voiced and even-tempered, having learned the uselessness of impatience in the work that must be done. Sometimes she still scowled, sometimes she smiled, but she did not laugh. When she could, she went to the Grove alone, as she had always done. But in these years of the building of the House and the founding of the school, she could go there seldom, and even then she might take a couple of students to learn with her the ways through the forest and the patterns of the leaves; for she was the Patterner. "If a word can heal, a word can wound," the witch said. "If a hand can kill, a hand can cure. It's a poor cart that goes only in one direction." "Best come away," said the Master Windkey, his face set and sombre, his keen eyes troubled. He set out in a high, harsh voice. "Come up on to the hill, Thorion," she said. south road on a good horse and asking at the tavern for lodging. They sent him to Sans house, but stableyard, off across the hill, on the path that went around it halfway up. One of the dogs, her. "It's not Roke magic," the old man said. His voice was dry, a little forced. "Not to do with the Old Powers, either. Nothing of that sort. Nothing sticky." "Oh, but it is. I'll bet you had to unlearn every spell I taught you. Didn't you?" Ember parted from him with only a "Good night." walls, there... But if you go home, you must be willing to protect yourself. It's a difficult thing. The Old Powers," Irian said. She said nothing, but breathed very warm in his ear, and he moaned. His hands clenched hers. He sank. All the shouting and screaming of men's voices was suddenly silent. There was no noise but think I ought to?" he asked at last. They went there together and stayed till the winter came. In the year that followed, they built a little house near the edge of the Thwilburn that runs out of the Grove, and lived there in the summers. knows it has real power, power of life and death, over the person. She stopped and stared at him. the dogfight. Now, do you like the news I bring you?" "I could teach you how to do that for yourself," the wizard said, smiling, watching Otter rub and. He had not known how tired he was until he came to haven. He spent all that day drowsing before the fire with the grey cat, while Gift went in and out at her work, offering him food several times-poor, coarse food, but he ate it all, slowly, valuing it. Come evening the brother went off, and she said with a sigh, "He'll run up a whole new line of credit at the tavern on the strength of us having a lodger. Not that it's your fault." I found myself beneath the open sky. But the blackness of the night was kept at a great distance. The Doorkeeper caught up with her as she came to a cross-corridor and stood not knowing which way to take. "This way," he said, falling into step beside her, and after a while, "This way," and so they came quite soon to a door. It was not made of horn and ivory. It was uncarved oak, black and massive, with an iron bolt worn thin with age. "This is the back door," the mage said, unbolting it. "Media's Gate, they used to call it. I keep both doors." He opened it. The brightness of the day dazzled Irian's eyes. When she could see clearly she saw a path leading from the door through the gardens and the fields beyond them; beyond the fields were the high trees, and the swell of Roke Knoll off to the right. But standing on the path just outside the door as if waiting for them was the pale-haired man with narrow eyes. The nights were long and terrible, for the spells pressed on him, weighed on him, waked him over. "I have thought some about it," said the boy, in his husky voice. him I'd retire" he said.
